$350,000 Paid To City
Treasurer On Tuesday

All tax collection records for the city of Appleton were broken Tuesday when more than $350,000 was taken in at the treasurer's office in the city hall. The money came in at the office counter and through the mail.

Although Fred E. Bachman, city treasurer, and his assistants worked all day Sunday and until 12 o'clock Monday and Tuesday nights many letters remain to be opened and taxes entered on the books. Mr. Bachman expects to have the mail cleared away by Wednesday night.

Taxpayers crowded the treasurer's office all day Tuesday and lines of men and women were in front of the windows until the office was closed at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Bachman would make no estimate Wednesday of taxes yet to be collected. All taxes paid have not yet been entered on the books and them all has not been checked up.

When the office opened Monday morning $400,000 in taxes had not been paid. It is estimated that taxes amounting to $40,000 were paid Monday and with more than $350,000 taken in Tuesday a very small percentage remains unpaid.

Mr. Bachman and his assistants will finish checking up the taxes in a few days and all taxes not paid will be put into the hands of Chief of Police G. T. Prim for collection.

DE VALERAITES ARE DEFEATED IN DAIL

Obstructionist Tactics Fail to Secure Approval of Series of Motions

By United Press

Dublin—Two important motions were before the dail eireann when the Sinn Fein parliament resumed its session Wednesday.

Eamonn DeValera and his followers lost ground at the opening session when they were defeated by a round vote on each of six divisions which they forced from the floor. The DeValerites began obstructionist tactics with the opening rap of the chairman's gavel but were defeated in each instance.

Wednesday a motion to divide Irish land recently held by the "enemies" among landless Irishmen and another to have all births, deaths and marriages registered in Gaelic only were brought up by the malcontents.

Griffith and Collins, leaders of the pro-unity faction, seemed to have the situation well in hand.

Preparations will be made for the music memory contest under the auspices of the women club, the preliminary examination for which will be held Wednesday, March 22.

Dr. Paul S. Reinsch Declares Washington Conference Was Productive of Good

"Free human relationship, America's aim at the recent conference of nations in Washington, as reconciled with our own ideas of a free democracy can only be fully achieved as time proves to all involved that there is a basis for international confidence."

This was the answer Dr. Paul S. Reinsch of Washington, former ambassador to China, gave to the question what will be the effect of the limitations of arms conference, while speaking Tuesday evening in Lawrence Memorial chapel. Dr. Reinsch spoke on "The Washington Conference," at which as a legal advisor of the Chinese delegation, he was privileged to take "inside" observation. He was introduced to the audience by Dr. Samuel Plantz of Lawrence college, under the auspices of which his appearance here was arranged.

"Opinions in regard to the work of the conference and what is accomplished vary widely," Dr. Reinsch said. "The results of the conference are yet to be seen. Washington as the seat of the conference indicated the leadership among the nations which the United States has gained for itself. During the convention, a delegate could well long for the spirit of confidence to be manifest. Everything went so smoothly and so peacefully that one could hardly keep from expressing the wish that somebody would start a war."

KEPT OUT TROUBLE

"Of course it was not the purpose of the conference to bring out of existence differences between nations. The conference was called to bring about unanimity and it was quite proper to exclude everything which might have tended to create controversies."

The British delegation on the whole seemed to be able to handle the situation. They had seized the American spirit and temper. Arthur Balfour was easily the most distinguished delegate. Through the entire conference he showed himself a master in the smooth handling of men. He had a great knack of ironing out difficulties and making things simple and clear. Immediately after the first speech by Secretary Hughes in which America laid down these startling proposals for reducing armaments, Balfour replied in the same spirit. A British publicist told me that until that time he had never known Balfour make a gesture while delivering a speech. He said the British statesman had always been in the custom of talking with his hands in.

Youthful Slayer Called Mental Suicide — Will Not Know He is Being Hanged

By United Press

Chicago—Harvey Church, boy slayer, "more dead than alive," will go to his death at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon strapped in an invalid chair. Church, whom physicians say is "mental suicide," has cheated state on enacting full penalty for brutal murders of two automobile salesmen. The hanging will be merely "official ceremony" as slayer will not know he is being hanged, according to alienists. The decision to hang Church in the afternoon instead of at dawn breaks all precedents. The change in time was made for convenience of the jury of doctors and witnesses, who, according to law, must witness an execution. Authorities were empowered to change time of hanging because Church will not know if he is being hanged and the time will make no difference to him. Fear of gallows and a 14-day hunger strike has caused him to sink into a state of coma from which he cannot be awakened.

3 WOMEN OFFICERS

Three recommendations of applicants for the position of policeman of Appleton were made by Judge A. M. Spencer to the city police and fire commission Wednesday.

The recommendations were in the hands of the commission just in time to be brought up for consideration at its regular meeting at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Predictions are that the commission will take immediate action and vote to employ one of the women approved by Judge Spencer.

By United Press

Milwaukee—Five bandits in two automobiles and armed with sawed off shotguns robbed Fred Wallner, chief paymaster for Palmolive Soap company here Wednesday of $19,000 and made their escape.

Wallner was just entering the gates of the plant when the bandits drove up. They leveled their guns at Wallner and grabbed the bag containing the payroll money of the company and drove away.

HORTONVILLE IN
Role Of Host Is Great Success

The little village of Hortonville won the everlasting gratitude and friendship of some 200 storm bound travelers last week when it took them off the stalled trains and entertained them for two days. According to the travelers, it was the most spontaneous welcome any of them had ever experienced anywhere.

Hortonville has very meagre hotel facilities, far from sufficient to accommodate 200 strangers, but everyone was cared for in private homes and all the entertainment that could be desired under the circumstances, was provided. There was very little organization about it—all the residents seemed to feel the need of doing something and they all went and did it. Travelers were told where they could find lodging and meals during the enforced stay in the village; the ill were given medical treatment; the hungry were fed; mothers were provided with every convenience for caring for their children and everything possible was done for everyone.

The village was not particularly well stocked with food and it is reported the stocks were running very low when communication was restored and the travelers began to leave. Dozens of strangers declared it would be a long time before they would forget the hospitality of the Outagamie county village.

SLAYER WILL SEEK PROBE OF SANITY

Elkhorn, Wis.—Fred McBride, whose confession to the murder of Edward Thielman, his chum a week ago solved the Miracle creek murder mystery which baffled authorities for more than two months, will repudiate his confession and enter a plea of not guilty when he is arraigned at Elkhorn, Wis., Thursday afternoon, developments Tuesday night made practically certain.

A vigorous defense based upon the allegation that McBride is insane, will be instituted by his only brother, Jesse McBride, a farmer near Portland, Ind., who late Tuesday night sent a Portland attorney, Fred Decholt to Elkhorn.

Trains Move Over Soo Line Branch First Time Tuesday — Traction Company May Provide Partial Street Lighting Tonight.

Resumption of commercial long distance telephone service and restoration of passenger service on the local branch of the Soo line were accomplishments of Tuesday which helped to obliterate the havoc of last week's storm.

The storm still is the main topic of conversation of the street and in the home, but the steady struggle by big relief organizations, employed all through the northeastern part of the state, various firms is placing wire and train service on such a basis that one visiting the city now hardly would know that a week ago every means of contact was paralyzed.

MAY LIGHT STREETS

It would not be surprising if part of the street lights in Appleton, Neenah and Menasha would flash at dusk Wednesday night, lighting the city for the first time without the aid of porch lights. Repair crews are running with regularity and are able to make connections at College-ave. Power feed lines are in good shape everywhere except between Sherwood and Hilbert. Here men are placing poles and cross arms so that when a carload of wire arrives from Sycamore, Ill., a line may be strung at once. Some residences still are without light, but early remedy is expected.

TAYLOR MYSTERY
SOLUTION IS NEAR

Los Angeles—The "mystery of the murder of William Desmond Taylor, film director, is solved, if the story told by Mrs. John Rupp in connection with the arrest here on Tuesday of six drug peddlers is correct. Tuesday night declared Detective Sergeant Herman Cline, one of the police squad assigned to the case.

When Sergeant Cline, head of the police homicide squad, made that statement, Mrs. Rupp, who told the police she had "kept house" for the men, had been subjected to a rigid questioning by two detectives of the district attorney's office. Her statements were taken down in shorthand in the presence of officers who said they would check up every detail.

Attorney General's Opinion Clears Road for Construction and Maintenance of Junior High Schools Here

Appleton's course in constructing and establishing a junior high school was cleared Tuesday when William J. Morgan, attorney general rendered an opinion to John Callahan, state superintendent of public education in which he stated that it will not be necessary to hold a general election in order to bring about consolidation of the four school districts here. Consolidation of the districts may be ordered by the common council, he said. The board of education, with the approval of the state superintendent of education, may establish a junior high school.

The attorney general based his opinion on the fact that the special charter under which the four school districts were organized has been repealed and the city now is operating under the general state charter. He declared the general charter makes it unnecessary to hold a special election to consolidate the school districts.

American Legion Plans to Make Things "Hot" if Dilatory Tactics Continue

By United Press

Washington.—Hopes for a soldier bonus at the present session of congress were brightened when Republicans of the house ways and means committee, in advance of Wednesday's session, indicated they were favorable to bringing out the bonus measure for action immediately, and not postponing it.

Two things stood out in relief about the situation. First, the committee is striving again for a revenue raising scheme, with no assurance, however, that such will be framed. In this connection an excess profits tax again is being considered among representatives who are inclined to pay more heed to the fact that President Harding has frowned upon sole reliance on British bonds as a bonus payment source.

Two committees are disposed to get action now, especially because the American Legion is secretly planning to make things "hot" if there is much more of the present dilatory, indecisive attitude. Hundreds of American legion posts throughout the country are planning now to let the bonus take its course in the house provided reasonable action is obtained but when the case comes to the senate these posts expect to flood that body with messages demanding quick action.

George Kirehloren so far is the only candidate for alderman from the Second ward but it is quite likely that he will have opposition. It is reported that several men are considering circulating nomination papers.

So far no opposition has developed for Fred Bachman, city treasurer, or A. C. Rule, assessor. Alfred Rosser and Theodore Berg are seeking election as city attorney.

CONFRONT LINDSAY

New York—Five famous financiers, Percy A. Rockefeller, Thomas W. Lamont, Charles Sabin, George F. Baker and James A. Lindsay is accused with defrauding a dozen women of more than a million dollars.

Farmers Look For Isolation In Early Spring

In anticipation of a protracted tieup of traffic when the big spring thaw comes, farmers of Outagamie co. are said to be laying in heavy supplies of provisions.

Practically every where throughout the county the snow is from three to four feet deep. In many places it fills the roads from fence post to fence post and when the snow softens it will be impossible for horses to get through. Rural residents therefore feel wise in anticipating their needs and filling them now while travel is safe.

If I Were a Farmer—

BY GO-GETTER

I would find a ready market for my used implements. I would buy needed equipment at a saving.

Other farmers would have a need for a plow or harrow or tiller or tractor or some other farm implement I might have to sell. On the other hand, they would have a planter or a harvester or a wagon that I would want.

It would be but a matter of getting together.

I would find the farmers that wanted what I had as well as the men who had what I wanted through Post-Crescent Want Ads.

Think of the money I could save by this trading—this buying and selling at a profit.

Post-Crescent Want Ads would be as profitable for me to use as for other farmers. And other farmers are using them now with satisfaction.

PLANTZ SHOWS NEED OF EDUCATED PEOPLE
Dr. Samuel Plantz spoke on "The True Spirit of a Moral and Religious Leader" at the regular meeting of the Training School for Religious and Social Workers in Main hall of Lawrence college Monday evening. The speaker told of the wonderful work of Miss Sarah Wright, who though she was an invalid sacrificed her life in aiding others to have an education. He pointed to the great need of educated people but the greater need for those who are spiritually trained and who are willing to sacrifice themselves in transmitting religious training to others.

Monday was visitation night for the First Congregational church and 14 members attended the classes. Next week will be set aside for visitors from the Methodist Episcopal church.

FORDS RUN 34 MILES ON GALLON GASOLINE
Start Easy in Coldest Weather—Other Cars Show Proportionate Saving
A new carburetor which cuts down gasoline consumption of any motor and reduces gasoline bills from one-third to one-half is the proud achievement of the Air-Friction Carburetor Co., 146 Madison-st., Dayton, Ohio. This remarkable invention not only increases the power of motors from 30 to 50 per cent, but enables every one to run slow on high gear. It also makes it easy to start a Ford or any other car in the coldest weather. You can use the very cheapest gasoline and half kerosene and still get more power and more mileage than you now get from the highest test gasoline. All Ford owners can get as high as 34 miles to a gallon of gasoline. So sure are the manufacturers of the immense saving their new carburetor will make that they offer to send it on 30 days' trial to every car owner. As it can be put on or taken off in a few minutes by anyone, all readers of this paper who want to try it should send their name, address and make of car to the manufacturers at once. They also want local agents, to whom they offer exceptionally large profits. Write them today.

FINDS WIFE HERE WITH 'OTHER MAN'

Antone Kozleuchar Gets Off With $20 When Husband Fails to Press Charges

Some time ago Mrs. Antonia Scher-bichler disappeared from her home in Milwaukee. After several days search aided by local and Milwaukee police detectives, her husband found her in Appleton. She was living with Anton Kozleuchar who came here from Milwaukee about Jan. 1 to accept employment.

Since the first of the year it is said Mrs. Scher-bichler had been here in Kozleuchar's company three different times. About 10 days ago, Kozleuchar went to Milwaukee and in company with Mrs. Scher-bichler journeyed to Port Washington where they remained two or three days and then returned to Appleton together.

When in Appleton Tuesday, Scher-bichler refused to press charges against Kozleuchar but insisted that the wife return home with him. They left together for Milwaukee Wednesday morning.

Kozleuchar was arraigned in municipal court Wednesday after being held overnight in the county jail. He pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $20 and costs.

ARMS PARLEY PAVES WAY TO WORLD PEACE

Dr. Paul S. Reinsch Declares
Washington Conference Was Productive of Good

the lapels of his coat but he didn't on this occasion.

FRENCH PLAY POLITICS

"While the French men they did not enter into the spirit of the occasion as the British did. For one thing they insisted in speaking in their own language. This necessitated a great deal of tedious inter-translation. All other delegates used English. The French delegation always seemed to speak more to their constituents back home than to the conference. They did not seize the occasion with the same effectiveness as the British. The Japs were well represented. Their diplomats came with the idea of defending Japan's position and vowing to make concessions sparingly.

"China had the most complex representation of any nation at Washington. Many representatives of organizations and societies back home attended the meeting unofficially and this served as a close bond between the delegation and the people. No other country so well represented its people at the conference as did China. "China came to the conference with the hope that the United States would see that the injustices done her by Japan would be eliminated. Her people thought the conference would mean the restoration of their national rights. They wanted Shantung and Japan's 21 demands disposed of. This country could not open up these matters without touching the treaty of Versailles which had been signed by the three great powers. Therefore the conference urged the Japs and Chinese to negotiate directly in the presence of Secretary Hughes and Mr. Balfour, who would merely listen as the representatives of two friendly powers.

WANT RAIL CONTROL

"When these negotiations were finally brought about the Chinese made the railways the center of discussion. China demanded Japan relinquish control of her railways and offered to pay the Japs to turn over full control of them to her. Finally it was agreed that China could pay in full at the expiration of a 15-year period and in the meantime a Jap should hold the position of traffic manager of the railroads. This, China assented to with reluctance. "The matter of the 21 demands could not be handled by the conference even as judiciously as the railway dispute. The conference closed with the Japs still holding the railways and territorial concessions in China, but nevertheless through certain specific details the position of China was materially improved.

Dr. Reinsch closed his address with expression of the belief that the four power pact would in time gain the approval of the people of the world and would be worked out in conformity with the sovereignty of the nations involved. He showed how the conference had tended to give other countries the American viewpoint toward international problems, and difficulties and he felt it was a long step toward the enthronement of a spirit of altruism among the nations.

OFFER SHARES IN APPLETON THEATRE

New Owner of Playhouse Wants
Appleton People to Be His Partners

A chain of 50 motion picture theatres, a large number of them located in the better cities of Wisconsin, in which he will share profits with his patrons is the aim of F. W. Fischer who operates the Appleton theatre. He is offering his patrons in Appleton the same opportunity to become interested with him in the theatre that has been extended to the public in other cities where Fischer theatres are in operation.

"Fischer theatres are paying 1 per cent dividends per month with earnings considerably in excess of that amount," Mr. Fischer said. "The idea of sharing profits with those who make theatres profitable is a new one. I want a large number of partners in my venture. I would rather have several hundred small investors than to have two or three large ones. Good will is created for the theatres and real profits are realized by many. Our plan has operated successfully in Madison and in other cities and we only offer our securities in the cities in which we are operating houses."

Mr. Fischer said he expects to add a large number of houses to this rapidly growing chain this summer. Houses are being secured through purchase and several will be built, according to plans now maturing. Stock is offered in denominations from $50 dollars up.

While still a young man Mr. Fischer is a veteran in the theatrical business and has been active in its many branches for more than 12 years. From a treasurership he advanced to manager and to owner of several houses. His success has been due to a thorough knowledge of the business and to progressive methods of showmanship and efficiency. "Patrons are the greatest asset a theatre has," Mr. Fischer said, "and in allowing our patrons the opportunity of becoming associated with us and sharing in our profits a greater and surer success for all concerned is assured, for this is the age of co-operation."

L. W. Booth of the Fischer securities department now is in the city.

OSHKOSH MAN DESCRIBES STORM IN THIS COUNTY

People of Oshkosh have received a picture of the effects of the storm in this locality from L. C. Martin who returned to his home in that city after having been stormbound in Seymour. Mr. Martin tells of the hardships he experienced when the Green Bay and Western train on which he was a passenger was stalled at Seymour. He reached home by driving in a bob sled with four other persons from Seymour to Appleton, taking the bus from Appleton to Neenah and then finishing the journey in a taxicab. It took the party four hours to make the drive from Seymour to this city.

FIVE APPLETONIANS TO SAIL FOR EUROPE

Mr. and Mrs. Antone Fischer, Mr. Fischer's sister, Mrs. Barbara Stark, and Mr. and Mrs. August Arndt will sail from New York on March 25 on the S. S. Manchuria for Hamburg, Germany. They will cross Germany and go to their old home in Carlsbad, Austria.

Mr. and Mrs. Fischer and Mrs. Stark have been in the United States for 17 years. The members of the party expect to spend three months abroad.

The following pupils are on B honor roll:

MRS. ELVA CAULKINS

"I have gained thirty pounds since taking Tanlac and never felt better in my life than I do now. Mother says she hasn't seen me looking so well since I was a girl," said Mrs. Elva Caulkins, 303 Blandina St., Ulica, N. Y.

"For eighteen long years I suffered from stomach trouble and sluggish liver, and during all that time I hardly knew what a well day was. As I almost starved myself trying to avoid indigestion, I fell off until I was hardly more than a shadow, and was so weak I was barely able to drag myself around the house. As a result of my long suffering I became almost a nervous wreck.

"This was the condition I was in when I started taking Tanlac, but today I am strong and well, feeling and looking like a different person from what I did a short time ago. It is no wonder to me that so many people praise Tanlac to the skies."

Tanlac is sold in Appleton by Voigt Drug Co. and by leading druggists everywhere.

Living Room Furniture of Unusual Character

THE constant development in fine furniture pieces is emphasized in the illustration. Living room tables reflecting the fine Italian and semi-Spanish carvings and proportions.

The finishes carry the atmosphere of antiquity such as is found in the pieces shown in the large museums—pieces which readily reflect the age of centuries. Dull burnished motifs, carefully detailed carvings feature the pedestals, the lower base and the tops of the various tables.

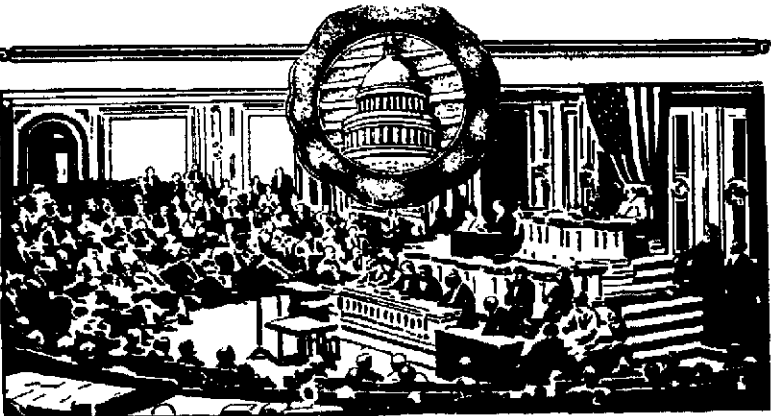

The distinctive chairs breathe of the day of Louis XIII and Francis I of France. Notice especially the carved arms, and the deep fringe that trims the seat of the chairs and the chair backs.

The upholstery is woven in designs that harmonize perfectly with the historic period and the coverings should be carefully chosen and should be restricted to damasks, old velvets and old brocades.

Colors that prevail are unusual old reds, burnished browns and old coppers. Occasionally the furniture is slightly decorated in old gold leaf.

You may anticipate a decided change in furniture effects in the coming few years, that will more correctly interpret for you the Periods illustrated.

WISCONSIN COAL RATES

The decision of the United States supreme court in the Wisconsin case brought to test the authority of state railroad commissions makes the Interstate Commerce commission supreme in the field of rate making. The court holds that "commerce is a unit and does not regard state lines." While it is true theoretically that the state commissions have jurisdiction over intrastate commerce and can prescribe rates governing it, the practical effect of the court's decision and of the practice of the Interstate Commerce commission is to nullify this authority whenever it is shown that state-made rates place an undue burden on interstate commerce.

As a matter of fact the supreme court's decision in the Wisconsin case involves nothing new in the regulation of rates. Several years ago the Interstate Commerce commission in its decision in the Shreveport case took the position that it had jurisdiction over intrastate rates whenever it was found that such rates were prejudicial to interstate commerce, and this view was subsequently sustained by the supreme court. In framing the transportation act of 1920 congress did nothing more than attempt to create by statute what the supreme court already had held to be the law of the land.

The decision, however, has an important bearing on the question of coal rates in Wisconsin, which is now before the State Railroad commission. This is an ex parte proceeding originally instituted by Governor Blaine to inquire into the reasonableness of coal rates within the state. It has brought out the fact that coal rates are grossly disproportionate to the service rendered, that they are altogether unfair and arbitrary and that they impose an unjust tax upon practically the whole fuel using population of interior Wisconsin.

It has been proposed by certain interests that the commission order a flat percentage reduction in the rates on coal, preserving the present group adjustment. Obviously this would accomplish no real benefit to the coal consumer because it is an admitted fact that the Wisconsin carriers would not comply with an order of the Wisconsin commission of this kind. As a consequence a complaint would be brought by these carriers before the Interstate Commerce commission alleging discrimination against interstate commerce because of the reductions ordered by the State Railroad commission. This whole matter would then be made the subject of litigation before the Interstate Commerce commission and courts, with the result that no relief could possibly be granted for at least two years, and even then it is problematical whether relief would be obtained.

The court's decision in the Wisconsin case accordingly confirms the fact that the only way the coal consumers of this state can get relief and be permitted to receive the benefits of their proximity to Lake Michigan docks and enjoy the economies of coal brought in by water transportation, is to readjust coal rates in the state on a mileage basis. Such a readjustment will save Wisconsin coal consumers hundreds of thousands of dollars, yes, millions of dollars. It would be of tremendous value to industry throughout the state through the lowering of production costs. It would enable our manufacturers to compete on better terms for outside markets, and would be of untold benefit to the public at large in reducing the fuel bill of the household. It is impossible to see how the State Railroad commission can take any other view of the question than that of establishing a straight mileage basis of rates on coal in Wisconsin, both because it is clear that a flat reduction will accomplish no good and because the mileage basis is the only method of rate making whereby the consumer located in the interior will receive the benefit of reasonable rates for the transportation of his coal from the docks. All other commodities are moved in Wisconsin on mileage rates, and it is the only equitable, just and sound basis.

AN AMERICAN MERCHANT MARINE

The country will approve President Harding's effort to create and maintain an American merchant marine that will adequately serve the nation and conserve its interests in world commerce. We believe it will indorse in principle the method he has proposed, although this is a question which involves so many considerations that it cannot be discussed intelligently until the full effects of his recommendations are thoroughly understood. Surely the country will not begrudge aid to an American merchant marine at an estimated cost of $32,000,000 annually, provided only, to use the president's words, "we are safeguarded against the promotion of private greed, and do not discourage the hope of profitable investment, which underlies all successful endeavor."

The president's contention that government owned and operated vessels, as embraced in the war time creation of America's large, tonnage was a failure, carries conviction. We believe he is right in his argument that a method must be utilized "which contemplates the return to private initiative and private enterprise." The American people are opposed to a subsidy as such. The plan presented by the president is not of this character although of course it amounts to an indirect subsidy. However, it is apparent that no assistance can be rendered by the government which will be effective in promoting an American merchant marine that is not in reality a subsidy.

President Harding has brought to the attention of congress a matter that is of the very greatest importance to the United States touching its commercial future. We are entering upon an era where the struggle for world markets will be highly competitive, more intensely so than ever before, and it is incumbent upon this country to place itself in a position where it can successfully meet the competition of other nations. Only by holding our own in the markets of the world can we hope to maintain the high level of American standards of living and wages. We are becoming more and more an export nation in manufactures and we need our own merchant marine to move this commerce. We are sure the president will find a sympathetic response in the American people in this praiseworthy effort to solve the merchant marine problem soundly and wisely.

CITY GOVERNMENT

In South Vancouver, British Columbia, a town of 40,000 inhabitants, the municipal council recently discharged from their positions 120 regular members of the city government staff and 1,000 temporary employees. The managing body took this action because it believed "that the rate payers were not getting their money's worth" from public servants.

Very seldom is it that initiative toward eliminating waste and extravagance starts within the city government. Complaints generally originate with the people, as a result of publicity by the daily press. Waste of public money is especially the rule in cities which retain the partisan system of election and administration. Precinct workers and friends must be rewarded for fidelity to party and bosses, and work must be provided for "reliable" voters. Not only is the waste direct, but there is indirect imposition on the public through contracts and concessions. There are numerous ways of repaying partisan obligations and concealing misuse of the taxpayers' money.

More efficiency and more economy are produced where the government is conducted along unpartisan lines, as, for example, by a commission or city manager. Improvement is due to the fact that the management is chosen and judged not by partisan considerations, but by business standards. City government is a business institution, in which the taxpayers are stockholders. The non-partisan system establishes it on a business basis. But the highest efficiency and the greatest public benefits cannot be realized unless the stockholders themselves take a live interest in their own corporation. The responsibility of citizenship for good government never ceases.

Secretary Fall says that "Alaska alone could pay for the war." Well, we are perfectly willing to give her a trial.—THE ASHEVILLE TIMES.

WOMAN

Our old friend William Shakespeare figured out the seven ages of man in a most satisfactory manner, but he seems to have overlooked woman, and now that woman is come into her own we feel that she deserves as careful tabulation.

First the fairy, all knees and smiles and perplexing pranks and questions, but mostly questions. This is the age when foolish mothers like to cut baby's hair with some vague notion that cutting makes it grow better.

And then the bookworm with sprawling legs and weak pronated ankles, round shoulders and slumped down in her seat, petulant, emotional, forgetful, growing like a weed. The age when spinal curvature, ptosis, flat feet, round shoulders, constipation and divers other habits fasten themselves upon her because her physical training is neglected.

Then the bud prepares to blossom. The age of Latin, physics, tongilis, chums, and incipient tuberculosis. The time when mothers worry or worse. This is the age when intelligent medical counsel is so sorely needed and so seldom sought.

Then the mother instinct takes control. To be suppressed by some fault of education, blotted out forever by the fearful wages of the so-called double standard, or to find its happy culmination in maternity.

And then the dangerous age, fat and 40, the age of cancer, Bright's disease, and arterial degeneration, probably the most harmful to the woman's health. The age when false modesty and procrastination lead to such unhappy ends.

And then the super-mother, grandma, finds herself surprisingly versed in all the lore of long experience. She vows to be a live one, and religiously avoid the footsteps of some pestiferous woman she has encountered in her day. A twentieth century grandma, the most useful and ornamental bit of bric-a-brac it is possible to have around the house. Cheering in time of sickness as a base burner in a grocery, and wise as Solomon in offering when requested her advice—a prize in every package.

Final tableau, presto, false teeth, new hair, a pair of nine inch boots, the life of the party. Old woman? Never! They don't grow old any more. Senility is an ailment limited to the male. You meet plenty of grandmothers everywhere, but rarely an old woman nowadays.

Movies as Newspapers

Does the constitution guarantee the freedom of the press, apply only to the impress of metal on newspaper paper? That is in no sense so restricted is the contention of Pathe Exchange, Inc., in an action, brought with full consent of the attorney general's office, to determine whether the New York State Center Board has the right to pass upon its moving picture news reels.

The contention, which seems to have some logic in it, is that the news reels are as much news as any of the printed columns of the newspapers, and that irrespective of the legal right of New York State to censor the moving picture plays, which are fiction, it has not the power to abridge the freedom of the press which it takes the form of "truthful pictures of actual events and actual things taken on the ground as they exist or occur," and not merely re-enacted or staged. The principle involved is highly important, because it would affect all state censorship and even the proposed national censorship.—NEWARK NEWS (Ind.)

Ocean Liners to Ireland

Among other signs of new conditions in Ireland is the announcement from New York of plans under way there for establishing between Irish and American ports steamship lines whose vessels will carry the flag of the Irish Free State. One company has already been incorporated as the Irish-American line, and the organization of another is expected to be completed in a few days. Surely there is no reason in Ireland's new situation to believe that things are going better with the world. Having her own trade will give Ireland that outlet for individual and national effort which nations are coming more and more to accept as a right of peoples which must be observed and conserved.—BUFFALO COURIER (Dem.)

Resume of American and Foreign Newspaper Opinion

Convention Versus Primary

Because "present conditions are so favorable to a reaction in this particular," the SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN (Ind.) thinks President Harding's stand for a return to party conventions instead of nominating primaries "may start something," and a number of editorial writers agree that a stimulus may be given to the dissatisfaction with the primary system that may result in a political issue. There has been a strong undercurrent in Republican circles favorable to a return to the old convention system and the ALTOONA MIRROR (Ind.) prophesies that party leaders who "have never cared to come out in the open for the reason that they feared the electorate might rise up and smite them" will not "take courage" from the President's remarks in a recent speech in Washington.

It might be suggested, the INDIANAPOLIS NEWS (Ind.) ventures, without meaning "to be disrespectful," that Mr. Harding is not wholly unprejudiced in the matter of conventions and primaries, for it recalls that in the 1920 campaign "the primaries spoke with one voice, and it was not for him, and the convention with another—and it was the convention that controlled." But conceding that the expression of "alleged popular preference" was ignored in the Republican convention, the BUTTE POST (Rep.) points out that "it has never been intimated anywhere that the national convention made a mistake when it nominated Harding," and the HARRISBURG TELEGRAPH (Pa.) adds that the President's view "will have large support among those who have watched the operation of this alleged reform in nomination of candidates for public office."

Under this "free-for-all method," the TELEGRAPH continues, the frequent result "is the nomination of utterly unfit candidates, who wobble through and are placed upon party tickets," further, it "invites extravagance, and the party gives place to the rich man in politics as against the poor man who may in every way be better qualified for the public service." After an experience extending over several years, the CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER (Ind. Dem.) arrives at the conclusion that "the direct primary does not live up to its advantage," and the party should give up public officials. It has not materially hurt the "bosses," and with the TELEGRAPH the PLAIN DEALER finds it "practically impossible for a person without means to seek a nomination in any closely contested state or district." Therefore it believes "the words of the President's worth considering his bold parties," because "merely standing pat on the primary will get us nowhere."

The President's preference for party conventions is merely a phase of the political philosophy he has advanced ever since he came into prominence, the SPRINGFIELD UNION (Rep.) points out, his faith in "conference voting" and "the party as a whole" and the best minds in the "collective" merely standing pat on the primary will get us nowhere.

The President's preference for party conventions is merely a phase of the political philosophy he has advanced ever since he came into prominence, the SPRINGFIELD UNION (Rep.) points out, his faith in "conference voting" and "the party as a whole" and the best minds in the "collective" merely standing pat on the primary will get us nowhere.

The primary is "not a perfect piece of political machinery," but granting all that, has been proved against it by the CHARMONIX TIMES DISPATCH (Dem.) still holds by many other writers, that "it is by no means demonstrated that the primary should be discarded," at least "it has given to the people the power to act in their own behalf wherever they desire to exercise that power." The OHIO STATE JOURNAL (Columbus, Rep.) declares, "even if its use thus far has been often neglected by those who own it and perverted by those who adapt it to their own ends," agreeing with the ROANOKE TIMES (Dem.) that "popular indifference" is chiefly responsible for the limited success of the system.

Certainly there is doubtful cure in the President's proposed remedy, the "intelligent" declaration of a party "in national convention, expressing the cohesiveness of its membership in representative conventions," a faith which the INDIANAPOLIS NEWS (Ind.) finds "lacking," since we have had so many "conventions" that were not representative, were strangers to conscience, and quite untainted by intelligence. The NEW YORK EVENING WORLD (Dem.), however, suggests that by the change of the word "intelligent" to "honest" we would have "an excellent philosophy of politics," but it feels that conventions have a way of being more intelligent than honest.

The President's "attack on the primary" in the opinion of LABOR (Washington) should arouse the country "to the need of defending it," a conviction which the ALKANA DEMOCRAT (Dem.) and the KANSAS CITY STAR (Ind.) carry out vigorously. The former gives as its "own observation" the assurance "that the people are very well satisfied with the primary system which they have wrung from the politicians," and have no disposition to go back "to the old convention methods for which Mr. Harding stands." The STAR warns that "President Harding will find sharp dissent in the primary states," for "the mass of voters will not surrender the weapon the direct primary has placed in their hands," and "only a reckless politician would venture to suggest" that the direct primary be abandoned. The OMAHA WORLD HERALD (Ind.) believes that "the signs are unmistakable" that such a move will be undertaken and that "President Harding is clearing the way."

Takahashi's Romantic Life
Berlin—Viscount Takahashi, the successor of the murdered Japanese Premier Hara, has had a life full of adventures. The YOKOSUKA PRESS (Jap.) tells us that he does not come from a Samurai family like nearly all the other political leaders of new Japan, but he has risen to the first position in the state and to nobility after by a number of interesting adventures.

"The story of his life sounds like a novel. He was born in Sendai, 1854, and distinguished himself so much at school that in 1888 he was sent by the state to America to continue his studies. But the Americans to whom he was entrusted stole all his belongings, and he was obliged to earn his money as a man-servant. At this time it went very badly with him, and people relate that he was sold as a slave. He says himself that he was still clean window wash, iron and so on. But besides this he learned English so well in the two years, until the Japan, ex consul in Auckland helped him to return home, that he at once obtained a very good position as teacher but with the large salary for those times of 50 yen (about 25 dollars) a month is supposed to have given up and lost his post. He got another one as teacher and then began doing translations from English papers, and was then employed by the minister of education and later with the President of the Board of Trade, where he soon rose to the position of director of a department. But he never had any peace, and on one day made the acquaintance of a swindler who told him of a large silver mine in Peru.

"Takahashi," continues the writer, "quickly decided to go there and borrowed money from friends for the enterprise; but though he discovered the mine there was no silver in it, and he returned very disappointed without a cent in his pocket and determined to start over again. He then took a post in a Bank of Japan, where he also began in quite a subordinate position and rose after a few years to be vice-president. When the Japanese-Russian war broke out he was sent to Europe to negotiate war loans and it was seen with astonishment that he soon enjoyed the same confidence over there as he had done among his friends at home. The state bestowed upon him the title of nobility as a token of gratitude, and in 1911 he became President of the Bank of Japan, in 1913 Chancellor of the Exchequer in the Yamamoto cabinet, and in 1918, in the Hara Cabinet he held a portfolio which he intends to keep beside his present post as Premier."

Prince Yamagata, Maker of Japan
London—The Tokyo Correspondent of the Times, Telegraphs the following concerning Prince Yamagata's career:

The scenes which have attended the closing days of Prince Yamagata's life have served to reveal the hold that this outstanding figure of Japanese modern life has upon the nation. The story has often been told how Yamagata, when Commodore Perry's black ships arrived off his coast, placed his sword between his teeth and swam out to attack the hated invader single-handed. This story is apocryphal, doubtless, but it strikingly illustrates the character of the man who, perhaps, was the chief directing figure of Japanese policies for over a period of half a century, and, owing to the peculiar position of the country during the Meiji era, was with such men as Ito and Inouye, the great directing brain under the Emperor.

When Yamagata returned from his European tour in the early 70's he made one recommendation following what he saw in Europe—namely, the adoption of universal military service. This was the beginning of the huge military machine which exists today, of which Yamagata was repeatedly Chief of the General Staff. Discipline was inbred in him, and this instinct made him impatient of so-called representative government and extremely contemptuous of Parliamentary institutions. It is not an easy task to transfer the mind of a modern Japanese, but one may assert that no serious political move has been made in recent times without Yamagata's consent.

We are no longer in the Meiji era, when it would have meant destruction in Japan for a statesman to be guided by the national sentiment in his policy, but we are in an era of nations with more natural and appropriate in Japan than the pre-eminence of statesmen of the type of Yamagata. They are the makers of Japan; in their hands had lain the power that very few statesmen of any country had wielded, a power almost uncontrollable. It is in accord with the sentiment of the Japanese people that the man who has experienced should be heard, and who was wiser and more experienced than the soldier who for 60 years played a manful part in the great battle of Japan for the right of national independence?

Laugh and Defy Indignation
London—"Tackle the turkey and the rest of it with the determination to uphold the brightest traditions of the season, and the spectre of indignation will be scared," is the advice of a noted writer in the LONDON EXPRESS.

"Laugh!" that is the prescription," says the doctor. "Don't treat the holidays as though they were something to be gone through with. This is the kill-joy spirit, which, I firmly believe, is many times more dangerous to the digestion and general health than a mere indiscretion in the way of eating or drinking."

Bus Transportation

Editor Post-Crescent—The recent terrific storm that overwhelmed our city causing so much devastation, depriving many citizens of light, telephone service, and transportation facilities is certainly very much to be deplored.

Let us hope, however, that some of our "City Fathers" not alone in Appleton, but in our neighboring cities who have tried to put bus-transportation out of commission will learn a lesson.

With car service tied up completely, and the Traction Co. practically helpless, the busses between Neenah-Menasha and Appleton kept operating, thereby showing that far from being a menace to anybody they showed that they were a real benefit to everybody.

Conceding that the Traction Co. did its best to keep in operation, still, can anyone deny that the busses helped conditions materially.

Think it over who oppose bus-transportation as a competitor of the Traction Co.

Polly and Paul-and Paris

Chapter 50—Wanderers in the Night

BY ZOE BECKLEY

"Where are the others? We've lost them!" Polly drew away from Barry's arm, staring with worried eyes at the deserted street behind them. "It's all right," he reassured her. "They'll soon catch up. Come—we'll walk back to the last turning. They must have missed us there." They walked back, but only stillness and the calm moonlight met their shouts and yodels. "It doesn't matter really, does it?" Barry suggested. "They're a crowd together, not missing us." "But Miss Rand came with you. It doesn't seem right for me to go prancing off this way with her escort—" "Oh, Violet! She's always taken care of. She'll be glad to lose me for a while. If that's all that's worrying you—" Polly suddenly recalled Norma's admonition. "You go on ahead. I'll see to Violet." And Norma's eagerness that Polly should occupy Barry's attention a bit. . . . Norma's design was evident. That it was working to perfection, she alone observed—and with glee. Then Polly's spirit sagged a little. Barry sensed it. "Listen, my child," said he earnestly. "What are you disturbed about? Don't you trust me?" "Of course I do," Polly's answer was sincere. "It's only that—" "That you think I am not concerned enough about Violet. Well, I've done my best, haven't I? Let's be philosophical. Violet's a good sport—understands things. She knows everybody who was there tonight. Now let's free our mind of worry." Polly smiled wantily, but said nothing. "Come, child, I read your thoughts. Tell me the truth now—you are frightened because you are out with a man who is not your husband—in Paris, at night, late? Come, isn't that it?" "Of course. Now, let's argue the thing sensibly." They were walking along again, slowly. Polly despite herself beginning to take Barry's view of the matter. "I don't doubt," he went on, "that in your native town this would be something to bother about. In Anglo-Saxon countries the appearance of evil is as awful as evil itself. Indeed, the real sinners, being skilled in deception, get away with it. It is the innocent, self-respecting victims of accident, who scorn to disguise it, that suffer the gossip and scandal. Isn't it so, little girl?" "Yes," said Polly slowly, "I suppose you are right." "You've nothing to be ashamed of?" "Of course not." "Very well, then. You're off for a walk across Paris at the most mysterious and fascinating hour of all the twenty-four!" Polly stole a glance at her watch. Half-past three! There was a thrill in it. She tucked her arm again within Barry's and they went slowly on . . .

Squash Dishes

PERHAPS you cannot quite a lot of squash last fall or acquired many cans in a canned goods sale. Here are some nourishing and maybe different ways of using it up. It does not pay to keep canned vegetables over into the next season, so use them all up before fresh home grown ones come into market.

LUNCHEON SQUASH

One and one-half cups sifted squash, 2 tablespoons grated cheese, 2 eggs, 1/2 cup chopped nuts, 1/2 cups milk, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon butter.

Mix squash, cheese, salt and pepper, nuts and butter with milk. Beat eggs well and add to mixture. Turn into a well buttered baking dish and bake half an hour in a moderate oven.

SQUASH GEMS

One cup sifted squash, 4 tablespoons brown sugar, 1/2 cups sour milk, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons butter, 1/2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon soda.

Mix squash, sugar and salt. Add butter and mix thoroughly. Add eggs well beaten. Mix and sift flour and baking powder. Dissolve soda in sour milk and add to first mixture. Stir in flour and beat two minutes. Turn into buttered muffin pans and bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven.

SQUASH TEA CAKES

One cup squash, 1/2 cup butter, 1/2 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons milk, 1 to 2 cups flour (to roll), 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon cloves, 1/2 cup seeded raisins.

Cream butter and sugar. Sift in one-quarter cup flour. Mix well and add eggs well beaten with milk. Add squash. Mix and sift one cup flour with salt and baking powder. Add to first mixture and before stirring in add the raisins. Mix well.

Add spices and enough flour to roll. The dough should be very moist. Roll the dough and rolling pin well. Roll about one-half inch thick and cut with a small cookie cutter. Bake 15 minutes in a moderate oven.

Of course there are squash pies and puddings. Any good pumpkin pie rule can be used for squash pie.

SQUASH PUDDING

One and one-half cups squash, 1/2 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon butter, 4 tablespoons milk, 1/2 teaspoon ginger, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 6 tablespoons powdered sugar.

Beat yolks well. Add squash, flour, sugar, butter, milk and spices. Cook over a slow fire till thick. Stir constantly to prevent burning. Turn into a pudding dish. When cool cover with the whites of the eggs beaten till stiff and dry with the powdered sugar.

Put in a hot oven for eight minutes to cook and brown the meringue.

SQUASH SOUP

Three-quarters cup sifted squash, 3 cups milk, 1 tablespoon minced onion, 2 tablespoons minced celery leaves, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, few gratings nutmeg.

Heat milk, squash, onion and celery in double boiler. Let cook half an hour. Strain. Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add milk mixture. Cook five minutes, stirring constantly. Add salt, pepper and nutmeg and serve.

LETTERS TO LOVERS

Emotional Control

By Winona Wilcox

Two months was to be the limit to these "Letters for Lovers." "Surely," thought I, "50 letters will exhaust the subject."

After concluding three times 50 letters, it is plain that "lovers' problems" have no end. Each new case is as different from the last.

vidual and cannot be solved by any other. But are there no deductions to be made from reading hundreds of letters from lovers?

One there is which is conspicuous. One which all women have read about, but which each woman refuses to apply to herself. It is this: Woman is over-developed on her emotional side.

Whoever has followed the letters from women in this series doubtless will agree with me that women will be far happier when they will admit that while love may be the splendor of life, it is only a part of life, and not all of it.

Love and marriage are the normal experiences for a woman, and as such they provide her greatest happiness.

But I protest that the strain, tension, nervous diseases and hysteria which develop from love in many a life are artificial and exaggerated and that when women get back to nature and cease to regard life a misfortune when love fails their status as human beings will be raised considerably.

Some women waste all their days in slavery which is unworthy. Some waste their nights weeping for a love which never was. Between the two are hundreds of excitable wives and sweethearts who, whenever they have a difference of opinion with their beloved, want "to end it all."

A lot of this exaggerated emotion which they attribute to their own extreme sensitiveness is merely a bad mental habit.

It is born of nothing, and it accomplishes nothing. The woman who lets love—and what one man does, says and thinks—absorb all of her powers is seldom as happy as she should be in theory.

Half of the time she is jealous, discontented, inefficient and obsessed with fear. And the product of all these or of any two of them, is nervous depression with acute reactions upon the bodily functions. Deranged digestion, insomnia and a weak heart are the popular diseases which actually arise from too steady thinking about whether a man loves a woman—or does not.

If I were to select one great wish for all women who fall in love it would be that they, study to acquire emotional control.

FURS AND MYSTERY

By A. Carstensen

Pick up your newspaper, glance over its columns and you'll likely find there an account of the activities of some clever swindler. In the same paper—possibly on the same page—you'll find the advertisement of some dishonest fur dealer.

Don't blame the newspaper because his advertisement is therein—the newspaper probably knows no more about his dishonest practices than does the majority of the public. Sooner or later the movement for "Truth in Advertising" coupled with the public's growing knowledge of furs is going to cause this sort of fur dealer to mend his ways or fail to get his message before the public. But until that time comes, he is going to keep right on enriching himself at the expense of those who buy furs without investigating the store from which they intend to buy.

Then, too, there are fur dealers who, to use a homely expression, are as "honest as the day is long," but who really do not know enough about furs to be able to judge between a clever imitation and the genuine fur.

A thorough knowledge of the fur business is not acquired in a year or even in a few years—it takes years and years of practical experience to become a keen judge of furs. Most anyone can learn to sell furs but to learn to buy furs intelligently one must know and be able to detect the "tricks of the trade."

Many a dishonest fur dealer knows furs thoroughly but the fur dealer of integrity not only has this knowledge but is willing to give you the benefit of it.

Unless you know absolutely, that the dealer from whom you intend to buy is honest, it will pay you to do a little "looking" before you part with the hard earned cash. Just do this and you'll be able to judge for yourself just which fur dealer is strictly honest and which is not. So once more in all sincerity we say:

Beware of the Wolf in Sheep's Clothing.

The WRONG FACE

By ISABEL OSTRANDER

BEGIN HERE TODAY
FAY TUDOR, wealthy orphan, returns from reconstruction work in France to recover from a nervous breakdown, the result of overwork and the news of the death of her brother, Wilbur. At her summer home in Sandy Cove, she is met by her aunt, an attractive widow, MRS. CLARA TUDOR, and the latter's daughter, LAUREL. Fay learns that in the summer colony are her rejected suitor, HARRY CADMUS, her aunt's son, the wealthy philanthropist, KENNETH CLAYTON. Alone in the drawing room on the night of her return, Fay is startled by the sudden appearance at the window of a ghastly, pale face with staring eyes. It vanishes and Fay fears that her war-shocked nerves have tricked her.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

They might even think that her brain was affected by the horrors through which she had passed!

After breakfast she wandered off alone down the winding side path which led to the shore. "Fay!" A masculine voice sounded close to her. She started violently, her unstrung nerves jangling again. A dapper young man in immaculate flannels with a bit of blond mustache above his weak mouth, stood beside her. "Awfully sorry I startled you, Laurel told me you were home, and I thought I might find you out here; I remembered it was a favorite spot of yours."

"I find I have forgotten most things that were habits before I went away," Fay replied. "I suppose I was one of the habits which you have forgotten, too, Fay."

"You were," she returned frankly. "Until Laurel told me you were at the club, I had forgotten that you were even alive."

Cadmus winced but persisted. "You are quite sure? There is not a live spark left among the ashes?"

"There aren't even ashes," Fay picked up a few grains of sand and blew them lightly from her palm. "They are gone like that!"

He sighed sentimentally, but a light of something very like relief glimmered in his pale eyes.

There was a hint of amusement in her face. "Cheer up, Harry. This is too nice a morning for postmortems! That's the sheriff, isn't it? Who is the young man with him?"

She nodded down the beach to where a tall, thin man with a grizzled mustache was talking to a younger, boyish-looking stranger. "A police official from the city named Larry or Harry, or something," Harry Cadmus responded. "He came up to the club yesterday to make some inquiries."

"Inquiries?" Fay repeated. "About what?"

"Somebody's maids were scared a night or two ago by something they took to be a wild man," Cadmus laughed. "They'd heard I suppose, because some seat cushions and a steamer rug were stolen from Pearson's lunch. Old Hulse hasn't had anything to interest him since the Patterson robbery a year ago, and he is determined to earn his pay."

Fay was silent. A wild man! What if that face—But she put the thought resolutely from her.

As the two moved off her eyes followed them idly. "Do you know, there used to be a tiny cave somewhere about here," she remarked to her companion. "We played all sorts of games of hide-and-seek there when we were children. No stranger could find it in a hundred years, but it would be a splendid place for any one to hide out in."

They walked back to meet Laurel playing with her collie on the lawn. She raised her eyebrows at their approach. "Mother has been looking everywhere for you, Fay," she announced loftily. "She could not imagine where you had gone, but I might have guessed; you always were fond of the bay."

She seemed deliberately to ignore Cadmus' presence, and Fay gazed at her in astonishment. What could be the matter? She knew her mercurial cousin's moods well enough to recall that this assumption of cold sarcasm always indicated an aroused fury raging beneath. Laurel's temper was uncertain at best; what could have awakened it now?

With a word of apology Fay left them, but at the steps of the porch she glanced back. Laurel and Harry Cadmus were standing as she had left them, evidently in animated debate.

Mrs. Tudor announced that her attorneys had come, and the rest of the morning was spent in a maze of legal and financial detail. Fay was astonished to learn the extent of her own wealth. She had inherited her brother's share of the family estate, and that amounted to a sum which staggered and depressed her.

When the waitress brought up her luncheon Fay noticed that the girl was smiling.

"What is it, Louise?" she asked. "Oh, Miss Tudor! The girl dimpled. "Frank was teasing the cook this morning because she declared that there were ghosts or witches about, and now he's found that his best suit is gone from his room over the garage and she has the laugh on him!"

"Frank's suit is gone?" repeated Fay. "Stolen, you mean?"

"Yes, miss. Gone from his closet some time last night, and there's no trace of how the thief got in or out of the garage, any more than he left any signs behind him in the pantry."

"The pantry?"

"That was why cook thought there were ghosts about. This morning two chickens were gone and the other food was all messed about, but everything was locked up just as she had left it."

So that face which she had seen could not have been a figment of her sick brain.

That strained, white face with the wildly staring eyes appeared once more before her mental vision, and she shuddered.

When the shadows were lengthening Fay descended and strolled about the lawn.

Near the garage she saw Frank in conversation with the sheriff's companion of the morning.

The last part of Barry's sentence reached her ears: "—not an ordinary tramp, but some one who knows the premises thoroughly."

The sergeant lifted his cap to Fay and turned to leave, but she intercepted him.

"I'll walk as far as the gate with you; I want to speak to you about some things."

"Some one else has seen the man besides those two maids," she began nervously. "I saw him, Sergeant Barry! I would prefer that you say nothing about this to anyone, for I've been very ill and I cannot yet endure any excitement."

"You may rely upon me," the sergeant was studying her closely. "Did you get a good look at his face?"

"Yes, I shall never forget it!" Shuddering, she told him in detail of her experience of the night before.

CHAPTER III

Mrs. Tudor's cottage was the smallest and least pretentious of the colony, but invitations to her small "affairs" were eagerly sought after. Fay had gone to a guest room on an upper story, but the music reached her even there, and the laughter and hum of voices and whirring of arriving motors made her treacherous nerves quiver.

After a hopeless effort she threw her book aside. Is she could only escape from the house to a secluded nook where she could be undiscovered, she felt that the cool air would refresh her.

Like a moving shadow she glided past the tea-house and to the edge of the wood.

All at once she became aware of the crunch of gravel upon the path. They were dragging, halting steps, with an odd sort of thump in between, surely not made by the light feet of any of the dancers!

In a moment a lesser shadow detached itself from the deeper ones and the girl saw to her amazement that the intruder was a man on crutches.

Could it be the miscreant who had invaded the house and garage two nights before?

She had turned to flee, when a vaguely familiar voice fell upon her ears.

"Miss Tudor! Miss Tudor, are you here?"

"Captain Warren. Oh, I am so glad you found me! I was lifted from the rung of the crutch and clasped warmly."

"I did not know your people were giving a dance tonight or I should not have intruded. I heard that you had returned and I wanted so much to see you. I've been staying with friends in the neighborhood, but I am leaving tomorrow."

"It was good of you to come." There was a shock not of pity in the girl's tones. The man who had come to her in Paris, her brother's friend, had been no cripple.

"Tell me all that has happened since I saw you in Paris."

"This, you mean?" He indicated the crutch. "I got it in the Argonne. However, I hope to discard my props before long and get about as well as before. I heard that you had been very ill."

"Just a breakdown," Fay's tone was lighter than it had been for a long time. "I never knew that I had nerves before."

He nodded. "I know. I've felt that way, too. There was an unconscious wishfulness in me."

"I could not speak of your brother's things to you in Paris," he went on. "I knew that it would distress you too much then; but I had saved them for you and I was sure that you would want them."

"I do more than anything else in the world; they are precious to me." She spoke very low, and there was a pause. After a time she asked in a change of tone. "But is everything going all right with you?"

FLINT BARBERS WORK BY APPOINTMENT NOW

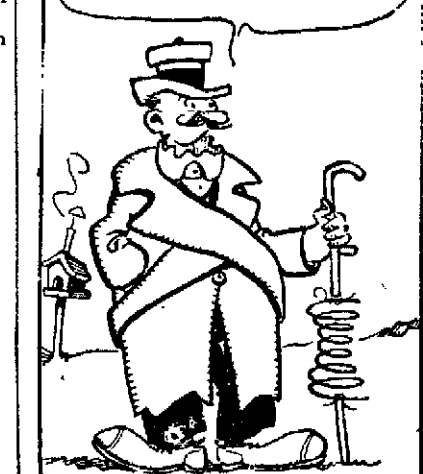

Flint, Mich. — "Next," the word that made the barber shop famous, and incidentally, that spelled success for the manufacturers of safety razors, has been eliminated from use here. A recent addition to the tonorial trade, conducted by two enterprising young barbers, has a select list of patrons and all work is carried on by appointment. A regular production schedule is carried out smoothly by notifying each "client" by telephone of his turn.

KAUKAUNA SHOWS LITTLE INTEREST IN SPRING VOTING

Nobody Wants to be City Officer With City in Present Condition

Kaukauna. — Long about this time of year thoughts of the people should be centering around the coming municipal elections in April and there should be corner gossip about which candidate is more fit to secure an office. Judging from appearances, the political pot in Kaukauna is far from the boiling point, in fact, it isn't even getting warmed up. What talk there is leads one to believe that the real question will be to get candidates to run for certain offices.

Indications thus far are that the mayorality race will be a sad spectacle. There are few men in the Electric city who care to run for the office with the city in its present condition of building and bonding, all for $600 a year.

Only a few papers are in circulation and if men are contemplating running for office, they have not yet begun the race. Papers may be filed until March 20, the city clerk announced Tuesday.

It looks as though the city treasurer's office will not suffer for lack of candidates. Several men are thinking seriously of entering the race but have not yet actually cast their hat into the ring.

Peter Metz will be candidate for city assessor. His papers are being signed by the required number of voters. Several aldermen are considering running for election but it still is early in the season and further developments will come as the time for election comes nearer.

TREASURER'S OFFICE SWAMPED ON LAST DAY

Kaukauna. — The city treasurer's office was jammed all day Tuesday with taxpayers who put off payment from day to day until the eleventh hour was reached. Barney Mitchell, city treasurer, and several assistants were swamped all day. Taxpayers who have not thus far paid will be assessed 2 per cent of their regular tax payment.

TITMORE PREVENTED FROM REACHING KAUKAUNA

Kaukauna. — Due to crippled train service, J. N. Titmore, who was scheduled to speak at the regular meeting of the Knights of Columbus Monday evening in K. C. hall, was unable to be present. The Rev. Father Van Bogert of Island held here for the same reason, filled the vacancy, and gave the knights a talk on the good of the order. A business meeting was held and lunch served.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Newhouse, Mr. and Mrs. John Newhouse, Mr. and Mrs. Jack School, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Newhouse, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Timmer, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Conrad, John Norbert Shea, Mrs. William Van Denberg, Harold and Roy Newhouse and Mabel and Viola Newhouse. The evening was spent with dancing and cards.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Green entertained the following at cards Monday evening: Mrs. Walter Romonowski, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Conrad, John Green, Mr. and Mrs. William Romonowski, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Romonowski, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Romonowski.

Miss Kathlee Kimball, teacher in the fifth grade at the Third ward school, who was called several weeks ago by the death of her mother, is still absent from her duties and may not return until later in the year. Her place is being temporarily filled by Mrs. John Engel, Jr.

MULFORDS WHIP THILMANY QUINTET

Kaukauna. — Mulford Basketball team was a winner by a score of 30 to 1 in a practice game with Thilmany last night Monday evening at the auditorium. The more experienced Mulford team was more than a match for the mill men and the free throw was all that prevented a white-washing. The game was called after 18 minutes of play because a number of the wax room players were required to report for work on the night shift.

Mulford has scheduled a game with Thilmany for Saturday night.

The battle will be played here but the date has not yet been decided. The Freedom team defeated the Fox club basketballers by a score of 12 to 5 in a game this winter.

Social Items

Kaukauna. — Members of the W. G. Girls club of Congregational church entertained the boys of Congregational Boy Scout troop at a party Tuesday evening in the club rooms of the church. The evening was spent in games and stunts after which light refreshments were served.

One of the largest crowds of the season attended the annual Royal Neighbor dance given Monday evening in Eagle hall. About 100 couples attended. Music was furnished by the Electric City orchestra.

The last dance before lent in this city was held Tuesday evening in south side Forester hall by the south side court of the Catholic Order of Foresters. Music was furnished by Harold Hoolihan and Herman Jansen. A card party was given before the dance. First prizes at schafkopf were won by Mrs. Joseph Leher and Henry Van Abie. Consolation prize was presented to William Hoolihan.

Seven candidates were balloted up on at a regular meeting of the Royal Neighbors Tuesday evening in Odd Fellow hall. A report of the dance given Monday night was presented. Routine business was transacted.

The semi-monthly business meeting of the Kaukauna Eagles will be held Thursday evening in Eagle hall. Only routine business will be disposed of. Officers for the coming year will be elected at a meeting of the "Colon" on Feb. 25 Wednesday evening in Odd Fellow hall. Other routine business will be brought before the meeting.

The I. O. O. F. club held its regular meeting Monday evening at the Y. M. C. A. A short business meeting was held and adjourned early because of small attendance. The next meeting will be held next Monday at the home of Ross Metcalf.

The regular business and devotional meeting of the Epworth League of Methodist church was held Tuesday evening in Epworth home. Miss Edna-Mae Harris was leader during the period.

Earl Evans of Neenah, was a business visitor here Monday.

Joseph Rink returned to work at the Union Bag mill after an illness of a week.

In the latter case, your story is read by all who see you, and what woman of spirit wants to be pitied for her physical condition? There is a way to get the new, fresh, lined out of your face and the slump out of your body. The use of that standard remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, will strengthen the nerves and tone up the system to resist that excessive fatigue.

Man, 70, Used His Legs When Trains Failed

Special to The Post-Crescent
New London. — W. J. Kimber of New London was not daunted last week by the lack of railroad facilities. After having waited for 24 hours in Appleton Junction for a train to bring him home, he set out on foot. Mr. Kimber followed the railroad track. The crust on top of the snow was strong enough to bear his weight most of the way. He made the trip in seven hours, stopping at Greenville for dinner. Mr. Kimber is nearly 70 years of age, but declares that the hike did not tire him at all and that he could have made the same trip again next day.

FIERY, ITCHY SKIN QUICKLY SOOTHED WITH SULPHUR

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; that is covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing soothes fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist. The moment this sulphur preparation is applied the itching stings and after two or three applications, the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right up.

A small jar of Mentho-Sulphur may be had at any good drug store. adv.

Possibly the Milwaukee Bright Spots now wish that the trains hadn't run over Sunday. The Cream City basketballers, pulled into Fondy Saturday on one of the first trains and stuck around just long enough to be sent home on the short end of a 22 to 17. The famous Knapp, O'Connor, Kibbe combination crumbled before the fast going Cardinal machine in a great game that drew a crowd estimated at 2,100 spectators. We can't help but wonder if the Bright Spots are still laying claim to the state championship.

NEW FIGHT CARD TO BE ARRANGED

Boxing Fans Disappointed When Show Scheduled for Thursday Postponed

Appleton boxing fans were disappointed Tuesday when they learned that the fight show scheduled to be staged in Armory G Thursday night was postponed because the Wisconsin Boxing commission did not receive the contracts in time. Under the state law the contracts of the fighters must be in the hands of the boxing commission five days before the show. Elmer Johnston, matchmaker for the Mid-West Athletic club, sent the contracts of the scrappers to commission headquarters early last week but Johnston's letter did not reach Milwaukee until Monday. The boxing commission refused to take the storm into consideration and sent word Tuesday the show must be postponed. The Mid-West Athletic club will put on a show of boxing in the near future. Some of the fighters who were to appear Thursday night will perform in the show and other matches will be arranged.

STRIKES AND SPARES

Changes in the standings of leaders in the state bowling tournament for Elks being staged on the Appleton Elks home alleys are coming thick and fast and not a session of the classic but that some team among the first five is shoved back and out of the running for the money. The tournament is coming along in fine shape and from now until the last ball is thrown on March 21 sessions will be held every day.

CLASSICS of the DIAMOND

George Hildebrand, the American League umpire, is sponsor for the following story: Before coming to the American League Hildebrand played, then umpired in the Pacific Coast League. In that league was the late Hap Togan, who, in his day, was to the coast fans what Nick Atrock is to the big league circuit. Hildebrand's story deals with an umpire. In those days it was customary for the umpires to fine the players for various offenses. Often in assessing the fine it was a habit with most umpires, if the fine was $5 to raise his hand and say, "It will just cost you that much."

Working with Hildebrand in a certain game was an umpire who had only three fingers on his right hand. Hogan got into an argument with this umpire. The umpire finally decided he wanted to fine Hogan $5, but he merely raised his hand containing the three fingers and said, "It will cost you that much."

Hogan neglected to pay the fine, hoping the umpire would forget it. The "ump" didn't, and the president advised Hogan he should pay it immediately if he desired to continue playing. Hogan immediately sent a check for $5. On its receipt the president suspended him. Hogan refused to pay the other $2. As manager of the club he refused to put his team on the field. The president of the league was gotten on the telephone, the conditions of the fine explained, and the president ruled in favor of Hogan. Technically he had only been fined $3.

Wisconsin Rapids team scheduled to bowl last Friday were unable to get to Appleton on account of the railroad tieup. The schedule will be arranged so they can roll late this month.

Batter hits ball which first strikes the ground about a yard in front of the batter's box and then bounces into fair territory and eludes the first baseman who tries to field it. The ball going into right field. When it passes first base it is a foul inside the bag on fair territory. The batsman runs to first base and reaches it safely. Is it a fair or foul ball? It is a fair ball. The fact that it first struck the ground in foul territory makes no difference since no one touched the ball while it was in foul ground. The fact that it was in fair territory when it passed first base makes it a fair ball.

BASEBALL MOGULS MEET WEDNESDAY TO FORM CIRCUIT

Fox River Valley League to be Re-Organized and Schedule Arranged

Baseball moguls of the Fox River Valley league will be reorganized and plans completed for the coming season. It has been definitely announced that Kaukauna has been awarded the sixth franchise in the circuit. The league will be composed of teams from Appleton, Kaukauna, Oshkosh, Menasha and Kaukauna. The drafting of a schedule is now in the hands of a special committee, it is said, who will present their outline of games at the meeting of the league moguls on Wednesday. Sunday and holiday baseball is a certainty and there is some chance that Saturday afternoon games may be played during July and August. Informal meetings of the club representatives were held at Oshkosh Wednesday and Sunday. An agreement specifying the rules and regulations relative to contracts, salary limits, and other important features, has been prepared and formal acceptance is expected to be made at the meeting Wednesday. The league this year will be operated under the rules of organized baseball, with officers and board of directors of the organization deciding the various issues. If the plans under consideration are adopted at the meeting Wednesday, it means that the Fox river valley will have a real baseball league conducted along the same lines as all other organized circuits.

A rumor was around town Monday night that Jimmy Smith of Milwaukee, world's champion bowler, would roll with the Hymnobile team that night. There was a wild scramble of Elks to the drives and front seats in the bleachers were at a premium but Mr. Smith was not performing. His name was not entered among the Milwaukee bowlers for the meet.

Several of the old timers will roll Wednesday night in the tournament when the team of 50 to 60 year olders go on the drives for the five-man event. The team is composed of Dr. E. A. Morse, Fred Peterson, P. H. Ryan, E. F. Carroll and Charles A. Green. M. Zoschke of Milwaukee has rolled the highest individual game this far in the tournament. He hit for 247 in the singles Monday night. G. Jonas of Milwaukee has rolled the next highest game with a total of 258 in a five-man event Monday night. R. Myers of Appleton rolled for a score of 225 in a five-man event on the first day of the tournament and is among the leaders for high individual score. A. Kraus of Antigo has a score of 232 and H. Flanagan of Fond du Lac has a high count of 225.

Saturday and Sunday will be busy days in the city when 25 Kenosha five-man teams occupy the alleys the majority of the time for the two days. Five Milwaukee five-man teams are also included to bowl on Saturday and Sunday as well as several doubles and singles Cream City maple busters.

Grandpa Langstadt is oiling up the old soup bone in preparation for going on the drives Thursday night. He will lead his Cream City Veterans team in the tournament five-man event and send his men out to beat the count of the 50 to 60 year olders who perform Wednesday night.

Only a few of the 25 Fond du Lac teams that were on the schedule to bowl last Saturday were able to be in Appleton. Many of the Fondy maple busters are railroad men and it was necessary for them to be out helping to tie the railroads out of the storm. Provision will be made for them to use the drives later in the tournament.

QUERY DAY

Appleton pocket billiard stars will meet in a singles tournament to be staged in the Carr and Hansen hall beginning on March 8 and continuing for six weeks. Prizes will be awarded the winners. The following players have entered the series: Stub Lethen, Andy Merkle, Les Drexler, Fanny LaFond, Hinnie Oakley, A. Gehring, Ed Zuelke, Martin Rehfeldt, Liza Bachmann and A. Gosha. players wishing to compete in the tourney may enter their names with Willie Brown at the Carr and Hansen hall.

Defy Hurdled By Cozy Team Is Unanswered

Cozy barbershop bowlers are taking on weight and getting out of condition waiting for opponents. The Cozy five-man team, which claims the championship of Oneida st. has hurdled challenge after challenge with no takers and the barber league busters are about ready to retire from the game undefeated. They recently sent a defy to the Mertes Clippers of Kaukauna, but the challenge has gone unanswered. They repeated the challenge to the Clippers Wednesday and declare that to make the match interesting are willing to lay a side bet and will go as high as two bets a side. The Cozy pin stars will wait until Saturday to hear from the Kaukauna outfit and if the challenge is not answered by that time will withdraw their challenge and stand ready to meet any Appleton team. The Cozy bowlers are good. They admit it themselves.

ADD MANY SEATS TO NEW STADIUM

Plan to Build Section on University of Wisconsin Concrete Structure

Another section of 4,000 concrete seats will be added to the Camp Randall stadium of the University of Wisconsin this summer, according to plans now being completed. With this new section, the stadium will contain about 28,000 seats, of which 13,000 will be concrete. The new section, 23 rows high, with permanent dressing rooms, locker rooms, first aid rooms, showers and equipment rooms beneath will be built on the east side of the field adjoining the 4,000-seat section that was erected last summer. Stadium building plans for succeeding years include: construction of lower deck of west side in concrete for upper deck; erection of 23 rows of concrete on south end; completion of lower deck of east side to 50 rows; erection of upper decks of 23 tiers each on east and west sides of field. When completed, the stadium will resemble a horseshoe in shape with open end toward the north. Its double-deck stands will seat about 53,000 spectators.
